“ There is a lot I could say about Doyle. In fact, more than could be put down on paper. I remember when I was in the 7th grade, Dad (me and Gerry's father) and his wife, Jean, moved to California with my brother, John, and myself and Dad and Jean's little ones. He hadn't been in the family very long, but when he saw how our stepmother was treating John and I, Doyle and Gerry took John and myself in when Dad and Jean moved back to Terre Haute. I do not ever remember Doyle saying any harsh words to me. He took on two teenagers. That's not something every man would do. But on the other hand, Doyle was not just any man, he was Doyle. He will be missed more than words could ever say.
