“ James was a real friend. We worked for many years on the same block in Siloam Springs--He at the U. S. Post Office and I at The Interstate News right at the back door of the post office. In the early years of publishing the newspaper, his sons, Jim, Tom and Steve, all spent some time working with me in or around that office. James' was a big help in successful mailing times for The Interstate News. I never enjoyed a coffee break more than those talking with James. He will be missed around Siloam Springs, a city that he dearly loved. Keith Sutterfield
