“ Here are some memories and thoughts I had last night while I couldn't sleep. Sorry for formatting errors, my phone was being weird with the random spaces and capitalizations.

I remember the many days spent serving at the Manna house with her. Sorting and washing clothes. Helping people in need find clothes that fit them

And would look nice at an interview.

Her spiritual gift had to have been hospitality. She loved to cook for others and insisted on it even the last time we visited. We always knew our friends were welcome over anytime and many felt like she was their grandma too. She often bought Christmas presents for anybody extra Who showed up at Christmas too. (Or made cakes for them if it was their birthday, even if she has never met them before!)

She is a Very integral part Of my definition and understanding of 'home.' Growing up, when we didn't live in arkansas, we always went 'home' to visit.. I lived with her a few times, including my senior year of high school. To this day, I still say 'home to grandmas house.' They say home is where the heart is.

I remember her adventurous spirit.. Well, when it comes to cooking anyway. Who has had her sourkraut chocolate cake?? :) Lauren, remember that time she bought the cheese made feom Soy, and just sat there laughing silently as we tried to melt it over our broccoli in the microwave to no avail?

The post it notes on the the bathroom

Mirror when I lived with her, telling me that she had fixed me breakfast and it was in the fridge. Or reminding me of obligations.

She always got me there early too. She perpetually had yellow post it notes clipped to her purse. A LOT of them.

She taught me how to balance my checkbook and bailed me out a couple times early on when I screwed up. And never once allowed me to pay her back.

She's called me every two weeks nearly the entire time I have been an adult. She rarely talked long, but she wanted to know what we were up

To, how the kids were, etc. She never waited for me to call. She understood things were crazy and hard as a young adult I, and then as a young adult with suddenly 4 children.

Speaking of which, there was never a moment where my kids were not her grandchildren. She treated them the same way she treated her biological grandchildren from day 1. Unconditional love and acceptance. Hers. Forever.

She is getting to meet her other grandkids before I do. She might be a little shocked by how many she had and didn't even know it. Rofl! I can see her counting them now and can imagine the look on her face! (If you didn't know, we struggled with recurrent miscarriage our entire marriage)

I can still remember the feeling of her finger nails on my head when she helped make sure I got all the shampoo out of my hair.

How when I was scared when I slept over and she's let me crawl into bed with her and is feelSafe and even how her bed smelled and how she never minded if I curled up close.

Her smile when we'd open the door at Arkansas natural gas company to Go pay our bill or just Surprise her at work.

How she always had the best bath toys like bath paint and the foam Letters.

How she would say my name when I was in trouble. Lol.

The Sunday dinners.

I love you Grandma Janice! I miss you so much it hurts, but I know you loved Jesus and I will see you again!
