“ Well yup this date rolls around every year even when I dont want it to... I dont miss you anymore today then I do everyday. I miss you like crazy still. I still think of you ALL the time and talk about you every chance I get.. 5 yrs though??? It does not seem real but you being gone has never seemed real. Sometimes I think I see you driving in a car or walking in a store or a smell or a memorie brings me back in time and your there. I dont know how to describe it all I know is that I still have a hole in my heart.. It still hurts like it did 5 yrs ago. My heart breaks for your Mama and your sister and your Dad. I see the pain in them and I just wish you could make it better.. Can you try? Visit them in a dream and bring them comfort..Hell visit me I miss you.. Please? Oh and Dont just show up in a gostly form, you'll scare the sh*t outta them. Which you would think was funny anyway.. I hope you hear me when I talk to you. I like to share alot with you. “ Kenny,

I wish i knew the right words to say to you. Sometimes there are no right words, but know this I will always be around to talk should you ever need to talk to someone. I am a very good listener. You have always been there for me when I needed you, and you helped me to survive myself 14 years ago even though you may not realize it. When we worked together, you were always flexible to my needs, and didn't question anything. Justin and Amy were just little kids when we got to know you, they grew up sort of with my kids but I always had a special place for them in my heart. I can say, that the last time I talked to Justin, just his attitude, and the way he talked, he was very happy with how his life was going. He always was one for the fast lane. Our thoughts and Love with always be with you for everything. Thanks for what you have given me.

God Bless you all at this very hard and sorrowful time . Justin and our Son, Tom, were very good friends. They started to school in the first grade in the same class and it followed through. “ Jennifer, Amy, and family -- what a shock for all of us! The words to say seem so empty; I'm sure you have questions as to why just like we do. I'll never forget his spirit; even after a hard day's work he'd come in happy as a lark and eager to see Huntlee. What a bond of love between those two. Justin was known as a hard worker, a good person, and a good father -- things you can be proud of. In time, may God replace your tears with the wonderful memories of all the great times you've shared. The ole Devil uses this time to get us to blame God; but instead, may you feel God's love uplifting you when you are lonely. Let your friends and family know when you need them to just listen or whatever your need is at the moment. Everyone will be there for each one of you. A friend, Nora

“ I know at this time there isn't really any words that would really make you feel good. In fact you most likely feel like being left alone! Most likely, you have so many questions going through your head, and there isn't any answers. But the good thing is you don't have to go through this alone.

If there is anything that Arlen and I know about is losing a love one, losing a son!!! One thing that helps Arlen feel better, is the thought of his baby not being alone. The thought that his best friend is now up there taking care of him until we get there.

Losing a love one is hard to deal with, and the thought that it was your son that you lose, doesn't make it any easier. So, if there is Any Thing, Anything at all, that we can do to help in any way, at any time, just let us know. We will always be here for you!!!

We LOVE YOU, JUSTIN!!

LOVE, Arlen & Jenn.,
