“ I remember the weekend after he got hired where I work. He had gone fishing and didn't like fish so he brought 3 huge Salmon to my door and said they were for us. We ate on those for a week. He was always doing things like that. We had a running joke that whenever I made Fudge Brownies and peppermint fudge ice cream he would just show up as if by magic, it was after all his favorite. After he died I made them again hoping he would somehow show up and have a funny story about how he faked his death. It didn't happen, I was sad. Its been ten years since he died, I still miss you Ron. You were the most fun crazy man I ever knew. You got me started in Ham radio in the 1990's and like a fool I let my license laps and now I am testing next month to get my license back again. Wish me luck, please at 72 its a little harder to remember everything. 73's Ron, talk to you on the Air .. KA7TWS to WB7RVA .. Silent Key ...
